ARMY OF LATTER NOW MUCH WEAKER

Further Fighting at Da Pass. Progress of Siege at Port Arthur-Tokio Hears of Several Important Gains by the Japanese.

ST. PETERSBURG, Rovember 2.-Ac ording to information which has reached believed, tending to confirm that a large force has been to assist in storming Port This information is to the effect much more than 150,000 men are fronting General Kuropatkin, but areso lines are heavily fortified in present activity of the Japanese the front, these reports indicate, by felguing to convince Kuropatkin the offensive is liminent. Should important intelligence be absolutely med, it is possible that the Russian tander-in-chief may himself attempt rike a quick blow. Kuropatkin is supposed to have nearly 39,000 men.

Another General Assault.

CHE FOO. November 29.—Chinese and Japanese advices received here to-day while not beyond question, indicate the practical certainty that another general assault on Port Arthur began November Associations Configurate November 21th. 21th and was continuing November 27th

It is certain that there has been severe fighting. The only question is whether the assault was sufficiently widespread to be called general. The fighting is with the object of capturing additional Russian trenches. The summit forts spemingly were not attacked. The Chinese say that one train of thirty cars recently arrived at Port Dalny with wounded men. No prisoners were captured.

As frequently indicated, the Japanese position is most promising at Rihlung Mountain and Kekwan Mountain and the latest attack was designed to increase further the power of these positions. A dotachment of the Eleventh Division began the advance during the afternoon of November 28th, following goveral days hombardment, rushing against the trenches guarding the approach to the southeast fort of the Kekwan Mountain group, the Japanese artitlery in the meanbombardment, rushing against the trenches guarding the approach to the southeast fort of the Kekwan Mountain group, the Japanese artillery in the meanwhile throwing all the metal possible against the Ribling Mountain and Antzu Mountain forts. The possession of the trenches was stubbornly contested. After five hours' fighting and several repulses, the Japanese drove out the Russians and destroyed their trenches and succeeded in entrenching themselves behind sand bags, which the infantry carried. At 11 in the aveging the Russians made a sortic which the Japanese say thoy repulsed after two hours' fighting. Another line of trenches, more formidable than the ones destroyed, lies between the Japanese at Port Dalny believe the attack became general, as mich returning from the front while not having seen the fighting reported that heavy small arm and machine gun fire was almost constant at various parts of the line till November 27th, when the last advices reached Port Dalny.

at the Waldorf-Astoria to-night.

In an address on "The Political Situation in the South," President Wilson said that no one could wonder at the present impattence of the Southern political leaders at finding themselves without real independence or influence in the political of the country; that it was the only section of the country which did not make a real choice of its political actions in the recent election. He was opposed, however, to the suggestion that Southern Democrats act independently of old party affiliations, as by so doing they would draw upon themselves afreshold enmitted and suspicions. The real opportunity of the South he thought to be the rehabilitation of the Democratic party on lines that would restore it to dignity and power by the casting out of radical theorists.

Among those who spoke were F. Hopelius of South and Cheeral, William he in the midst of the densely crowded mass of humanity. Felix langalis, and fatally hurt, and two other men and a how were taken to a hospital.
